NEW Saturday Parking Enforcement Begins

Starting Saturday, October 15, 2022

RICHMOND, Va. – Beginning Saturday, October 15, 2022, the City of Richmond will begin enforcing time-restricted parking regulations on Saturdays on Arthur Ashe Boulevard from Broad Street to Moore Street, Belvidere to I-95, and from Leigh Street to Franklin Street. There will be a two-week grace period where violators will receive a warning as a reminder of the new parking regulations.

In an effort to support small businesses, the city will begin enforcing time-restricted parking on Saturdays. In many areas around our bustling city, there are many people competing for the same parking spaces. Time limits are used to increase turnover, allowing more cars to park in the same number of spaces over the course of the day.

Creating parking turnover will reduce the amount of time long-term parkers occupy on-street spaces intended to support local businesses and educational institutions.
